GIRL ARRESTED AND HELD BY POLICE AS BLACKMAILER

A 17-year-old girl of Corinne is facing a grand jury investigation as a result of her crude attempt to extort money by a threatening letter sent to Mrs. R. S. Joyce. The letter was similar in phraseology to the recent blackmail letters and bore evidence that the young lady had been reading the stories of local blackmailers.

The arrest was made on Saturday by Detectives Charles Pincock and George Wardlaw and Chief of Police W. I. Norton, after the girl had called for a letter at the postoffice. Neither the postoffice authorities nor the police will release the name of the girl. It is said that she is the daughter of an aged widow who resides in Corinne.

The girl had been working in Ogden for some months as a domestic. It is said that she confessed when questioned following her arrest. She is said to have stated that she alone was implicated in the deal. Nevertheless, detectives tried by all means to discover whether she was the tool of a more experienced party, only to be convinced that there are no others implicated.

Mrs. Joyce received the letter Friday. It called for $100, which was to be put in a plain envelope and addressed to a man, care of the general delivery of the Ogden postoffice. The letter was placed in the hands of Postmaster W. W. Browning and Postoffice Inspector L. A. McGhee took charge of the case. Although the letter was crude in spots, great care was exercised, as the inspector and associates did not know but that the crudity of the letter might be a blind to throw them off guard.

Detectives Wardlaw and Pincock and Chief Norton were at the postoffice Saturday before the appointed time. The threatening letter had stated that the money was to be in the general delivery department on Saturday, so the officers took no chances.

The police waited several hours before the information was given by the clerk at the window that the letter which was to have contained the $100 had been called for. The police were surprised to learn that a young girl was the one who called.

The girl was brought around to present a card with the same man's name as was signed to the threatening letter. She told the clerk that the man, whose card she held, had sent her for the mail. The name was an uncommon one that would be a safe one to use for the reason that the letter would not be given to another.

Believing that the girl might be the instrument of others, the clerk was directed to tell her that it would be necessary to get a written notice from the owner. When the girl left she was shadowed. The detective, however, found no trace of an accomplice. When the girl returned to the postoffice she stated today that the act was only a girlish prank committed by one who was not familiar with the seriousness of the situation.

JUDGES OF ELECTION AND THE POLLING PLACES IS IN CUSTODY

Today the candidates and their friends are getting down to a heart-to-heart talk with voters and explaining the attitude of the candidates on certain questions that confront them.

Manager Cook of Fell headquarters says the registration was all that could be expected yesterday considering the feeble efforts put forth by the candidates. Before election day he expects to have a complete list of voters in the city and, of course, he is going to try to figure out how many of them will vote for Mr. Fell. The Fell headquarters is the only one so far established, and it is said by other candidates that they will take care of their interests in their private offices until the primary election.

The city board of commissioners today selected the judges of election for the two elections and they also decided on the polling places, except for the seventeenth district, which will be selected later.

Following are the judges:

First district, F. H. Wright, May L. Shipp, D. N. Stephens.
Second district, J. J. McGregor, H. Mack, Mrs. Anna Van Namee.
Third district, Thos. Lundy, Wm. Moyest, Robert Wilson.
Fourth district, Beattie Oakley, A. F. Miller, W. T. Stillwell.
Fifth district, Wm. D. Van Dyke, Sr., Samuel G. Sisman, Lois Fife.
Sixth district, J. E. Williams, D. W. Evans, Caroline A. Wiggins.
Seventh district, Mrs. G. G. Marriott, J. A. Smith, S. J. Van Ness.
Eighth district, Edwin Dix, Joseph Moore, M. C. Kinnaird.
Ninth district, Nettie Drumler, G. H. Butler, Jed Shaw.
Tenth district, J. C. Simmons, W. W. Crane, Mazette Mansell.
Eleventh district, J. L. Wimber, H. H. Wardleigh, W. H. Toller.
Twelfth district, Geo. D. Folkman, A. F. Richey, A. G. Harris.
Thirteenth district, Fred Foulger, Aaron Jackson, Walter Richey.
Fourteenth district, H. C. Wardleigh, Mrs. Matilda Lucas, H. E. Steel.
Fifteenth district, Fred Meisner, C. J. Brown, Rachel Middleton.
Sixteenth district, Thos. A. Shreeve, Richard Taylor, Sarah L. Riser.
Seventeenth district, Dora P. Holther, D. F. Steele, J. Stanley Dee.

The polling places to be used at the primary and general election held October 21 and November 4 are as follows:

First district, May L. Shipp, 204 33rd street.
Second district, Alice Collins, 2983 Pingree avenue.
Third district, City Hall.
Fourth district, Addie Angel Fellows, 126 Poplar avenue.
Fifth district, Third ward amusement hall.
Sixth district, Annie Wiggins, 2246 Grant avenue.
Seventh district, N. G. U. Armory, 211 24th street.
Eighth district, Mrs. C. W. Chase, 1563 Washington avenue.
Ninth district, Mrs. R. Boslow, 968 Washington avenue.
Tenth district, Shaw Mercantile company, 203 Washington avenue.
Eleventh district, Elizabeth Fife, 2122 Adams avenue.
Twelfth district, County Court House.
Thirteenth district, Fred Foulger, 738 24th street.
Fourteenth district, H. C. Wardleigh, 211 Quincy.
Fifteenth district, Columbia Club cigar factory, 451 25th street.
Sixteenth district, Fifth ward amusement hall.
The seventeenth district polling place will be at the residence of J. H. Hassel, 2904 Washington avenue.

Guilt or Innocence of Governor Sulzer May Be Decided Tonight.

Albany, Oct. 15.—The high court of impeachment decided today that article 4 was broad enough to cover the Peck testimony in the trial of William Sulzer. The court decided that it was unnecessary to amend the article or to ask the assembly to draw a new one. No mention was made of the Morgenthau testimony in the opinion of the court, which was read by Judge Cullen.

The decision of the court not to send the Peck-Morgenthau testimony to the assembly for a new article caused gloom among Governor Sulzer's friends, who had looked on the proposed action as favorable to their side of the case.

OFFICERS PREPARE FOR ANNUAL TEST

Washington, Oct. 15.—Great activity marked the day in Fort Meyer and there was a hurried overhauling of saddles and other horse gear for tomorrow nearly two score officers will start on their annual ordeal—the 90-mile compulsory ride, inaugurated by President Roosevelt—to demonstrate the physical fitness of the army men who wear the epaulettes. A number of officers who have straddled nothing more strenuous than a swivel chair in the last year are looking forward to tomorrow's dawn with apprehension. Brigadier General Al Mills, chief staff of the army, will be in command of the calvary.

Confesses Throwing Body of Young Waitress in San Francisco Bay.

Callexico, Cal., Oct. 15.—Said Ali Khan, a Hindu, wanted in Stege, Cal., in connection with the murder of Rosa Dominga, a waitress, whose body was found in San Francisco bay weighted with chains, was arrested here today by Sheriff Meadows of this county. The sheriff said the Hindu had confessed.

San Francisco, Oct. 15.—A body found in the bay near Stege on Contra Costa shore, was identified a week ago last Sunday as that of Rosa Dominga, a Portuguese girl of humble parentage, who had worked as a waitress. Her intimacy with Said Ali Khan, employed in a match factory, was known to her parents, who lived near the little shack in which Said Ali slept. Bits of the girl's clothing were found in the ashes of the fire place of the shack.

Had it not been for an unusually low tide, the murder might not have been discovered, for the body was heavily weighted with chains.

WERE TRAPPED IN COMPARTMENT

He turned to me and said, 'Don't look she'll last long now.'

Captain's Eyes Nearly Out.

"He was groaning when he told me this. His eyes were almost out. They were so badly burned that he could not read and I read the wireless messages to him. I had to force him to eat. All he wanted was to save the passengers. He had lost hope of saving the ship."

"When the fire broke out in No. 2 the smoke rolled in black clouds into the bunkers. The engineers shut the water-tight doors. The stockers could not work in the smoke, and the coal supply was cut off by flames. So the engine fired down. We used our last ounce of steam to keep the wireless plant going. When the steam was all gone, we kept the wireless going by a hand generator. The engine room was left in darkness shortly after 2:30 o'clock."

"There was no steam to keep the pumps going and the flames rose higher. It grew darker and hotter. At 2 o'clock that night, flames were shooting out of the saloon and lighting the dark water. The passengers were crowding the rails aft. It looked as if the end had come. The Grosser Kurfuerst lowered a boat, then the Kroomland lowered one. They came as near as they dared, but not near enough for us to throw them a line. Had they come nearer they would have been shattered against the ship."

"The captain tried to shoot a line to one of the boats with a rocket. The rocket shot up, leaving the line behind. A spark set off all our rockets. Almost the same minute there was a terrific explosion on the bridge. All our ammunition had gone up."

Passengers Attempt to Swim.

"Half a dozen passengers jumped to swim for the boats. Captain Inch turned to me. 'If you see a chance for your life,' he said, 'take it and jump.' The captain ordered all the passengers to fasten on the life belts. They did so and became quieter."

"Of the half dozen who jumped, all had lines about them and we pulled them back to the ship when we saw they couldn't make the boats."

"When the rockets all went up at once and the explosion shook us, the captain of the Kroomland, thinking that it meant the end, lowered all the boats. The fire spread amidships."

"Two women threw their arms around my neck weeping, begging me to save their lives. I promised to do what I could, I told them to watch the boats from the other ships and when they came close to us to jump for them. They leaned over the rail, looked down at the dark water and were afraid. When I tried to help them, they hugged a stanchion and would not jump."

All Lights Go Out.

"All our lights went out then. The searchlights of the eleven ships around us and the glare of the fire on the water were all we had to guide us. I gave the order for all to make ready to jump for the boats. Captain Inch was still on the bridge. The passengers made ready."

"Some of the passengers were brave and jumped into the water when the boats came close and were picked up. Some were not picked up. One of the life boats was piled full and put away. It was the first boat that came to us, a little boat marked 'New York.' A second boat was from the Grosser Kurfuerst. I told the passengers not to jump unless the boat was very near and they heeded my commands. But most of them were scared and refused to jump."

"Finally the women who begged me to save them slid down a rope and were taken in a boat. More passengers slid down the ropes. One of the boats from the Grosser Kurfuerst almost touched the side of the Volturino. It was soon filled with passengers who slid down the ropes. When I saw that no more would go and that all the women were off, I slid down a rope and without touching water stepped into the boat."

Life Boat's Terrific Struggle.

"That life boat crew had a terrific struggle to pull away without going foul of our screw. Second and third boats of the Grosser Kurfuerst were out nearly five hours. The captain of the Grosser Kurfuerst thought that the last boat was lost as it was nearly six hours before it came back to the ship."

Next morning the captain of the Grosser Kurfuerst put two boats out again. The sea was quieter and they took off the remaining passengers without much trouble."

Survivors of the Volturino aboard the Grosser Kurfuerst were all men, steerage passengers, crew and a lone first-class passenger. The Kurfuerst's doctor said that none of the rescued had been ill and that all seemed to have recovered from their experience. They were all, with one exception, paupers and without baggage but they were allowed to land by order of the immigration authorities at Washington and were taken care of by various institutions here.

The answer to that request is no longer the hair mattress with its uncleanly association, but the sweet, pure, luxuriously elastic
